CITY INTELLIGENCE.

MEETING OF THE TEACHERS' ASSOCIATION The Columbian Teachers' Association held their regu-lar monthly meeting at the Smithsorian Institution festerday morning. Dr. S. L. Leomis requested per-mission to show and explain an instrument invented by Mr. Gordon, of London. It was a kind of proby Mr. Gordon, of London. It was a kind of pro-tractor used in surveying and architecture. He asked the Association to appoint a committee to re-port upon the instrument. Professor Z. Richards mentioned a similar instrument which had just been patented by a friend of his, and hoped the commit-tee would be antho, and is sport upon both. Dr. Loomis objected to any competition or comparison of the instru-ments before the committee. The subject was postponed until after the consideration of the regular order. Prof. MacLood then made some remarks on the best mode of teaching elecution in schools, and observed that there teaching elecution in schools, and observed that there were four requisites to correct, harmonious, and forcible elecution, namely: lst, vocal power of utterance; 2d, the speaker should understand and feel the exact degree of sentiment he desires to express; 3d, he must be exclusively occupied with the subject-matter expressed, and not with mere sounds and motions; and th, he must have a cultivated taste, so as to avoid extravagance. Prof. MacLeod gave some examples of reading, to illustrate his remarks. Mr. Wight followed with some appropriate remarks on the same subject, and read several passages from Campbell and other standard authors. Prof. Richards also expressed his views, which struck us as eminently practical. He remarked that a good reader would, in the first place, enunciate and articulate every letter which ought to be heard distinctly, and he would pronounce overy word accurately and with such force as will enable all his hearers to hear him with ease. Secondly, he would read with such a modulation of voice, emphasis, and gesture as would make the hearer attend have a cultivated taste, so as to avoid extravagance. Prof. mphasis, and gesture as would make the hearer attend uly to the sentiment of what, was read; or, in other rords, so as to turn the attention of the hearer to the matter rather than to the manner of reading. Such a reader or speaker is not likely to be praised or condemned as such; while the speaker who may exhibit remarkable precision of tone and gesture may be called an orator. Distinctness of articulation depends upon a proper utterance of the vowels and consonants of a language. Vowels constitute the music of oratory; and the modulation of the voice depends upon the and the modulation of the voice depends upon the vowel sounds, which can be given on every degree of the musical scale. Consonants are required to give a peculiar character to the word, and to enable the hearer to distinguish it from others, as well as to dis-tinguish every part of the word itself. To make good readers we must begin with the child—begin with him as he begins to utter the first elementary sounds, the first letter and the first word. At that time the voice should be cultivated rather than at any other period of his life. The child, at the very first, should learn to give the proper utterance to all the elementary sounds. He should also be taught to give the proper modulation to the voice at the very earliest part of his education; and this, as a matter of course, will be most easily done by making him understand what he reads. There is an excellent Scripture direction upon that subject, which is found in the eighth chapter and eighth verse of Nebemiah: "So they read in the book, in the law of God, distinctly, and gave the sense, and caused them to un-derstand the reading." Prof. R. remarked that he did not know of any better direction than that in any of our child should commence right, and read several passages in further illustration of his remarks.

On motion, it was ordered that the first hour of the t meeting by devoted to the wrone subject.

Not Dichards aunounced that when this subject should Loomis would open the subject of also stated that he had received a communication from Mr. Barnard, who was well known as a friend of educabooks on oratory. He then spoke of the difficulty of breaking up bad habits, and the importance that the weeks, and due notice would be given of the lecture.

On motion by Dr. Loomis, a resolution was adopted that hereafter, at quarter before twelve, the discussion of literary subjects shall terminate for the purpose of considering such business as may be presented.

On motion by Mr. Wight, a resolution was adopted for the appointment of a committee of three to examine the protracting instrument of Mr. Gordon, exhibited to this association by Dr. Loomis, and also any similar instrument that may be brought to their notice; and that this committee prepare and present to Mr. Gordon their opin-ion, as the opinion of the association, on the absolute or elative merits of this instrument, provided that this arrangement be satisfactory to Mr. Gordon.

The Chairman stated that he would appoint the committee at some future time, not being prepared to an-

The association then adjourned until the first Saturday in November. These meetings are quite interesting and are largely attended not only by the teachers of our public schools, but by others who feel an interest in the cause of education. The discussions are conducted in a friendly spirit, and the information elicited cannot but be of great benefit to all present; while the examples and Illustrations in elecution give variety and add a zest to the exercises.

This Washington Theatrae — For the past week Miss. Coomba has contended for the approbation of our citizens, and no meagre share of it has been her reward. Almost unknown in the city, and almost untried, with but the experience afforded by her brief engagement in New York, she ensountered difficulties which surely might have appailed a stouter heart than hors. But, full of her high purpose, and conscious of her brillihot matural abilities, she entered upon her engagement certain of success if she could but gain the attention of the public. Every one knows how difficult it is to obtain an audience for a new contestant for histrionic honors, and when it is recollected that Miss Coomba was announced to make her debut as the state of the property of the country of contestant for histrionic honors, and when it is recoilected that Miss Coombs was announced to make her desir as Constance, in the "Love Chase," it will readily be admitted that her difficulties were rather increased than diminished. But the performance over, we heard more than one declare that they were most agreeably disappointed. It is true that she has faults, but they are more faults of style, and can easily be overcome by constant application. It is rather by the truthfulness with which she represents the passions that she succeeds than by a close attention to the minute appliances of her art, which add so much to the general effect. Having acquitted herself well in the estimation of the public, she was encouraged to higher effort, and appeared successively as Julia in the "Hunchback," Lady Gay Spanker in "London Assurance," Lady Teazle in the "School for Scandal," and likes Maryland C Hades Massachusetts In Lovel, New York J Thornton, Virginia and with a visible improvement to the restlement of the reading National Scandal, "and the "Italian Wife," with increasing confidence, and with a visible improvement to the restlement of the public, she was cancouraged to higher effort, and appeared successively as Julia in the "Hunchback," Lady Gay Spanker in "London Assurance," Lady Teazle in the "School for Scandal," and Blanca in the "Italian Wife," with increasing confidence, and with a visible improvement to the make the reading that the state of the public, she was cancouraged to higher effort, and appeared successively as Julia in the "Hunchback," Lady Gay Spanker in "London Assurance," Lady Teazle in the "School for Scandal," and Blanca in the "Italian Wife," with increasing confidence, and with a visible improvement to the make the reading that the provement to the make the desired that the provement to the make the desired that the provement to the make the safety of Constant Provement Teachers and the desired that the provement to the make the desired that the provement to the minute of the provement to Bianca in the "Italian Wife," with increasing confidence, and with a visible improvement in her style and reading that was highly gratifying to her new-made friends and admirers. Should she return to Washington and again tread the boards of our bijon of a theatre, she may be sure of a warm welcome and a packed house to pay court to her gathering honors.

To-morrow evening the admirers of sprightly acting may be fully gratified by Miss Maggie Mitchell, a beautiful and sparkling young comedienne, whose witchery and joyous abandon of style have won many triumphs throughout the Union. Miss Mitchell resembles in style Miss Polly Marshall, though possessing perhaps more refinement and finish than that able actress, together with the superior advantages of youth and great personal the superior advantages of youth and great personal charms. Miss Mitchell, or "Our Maggie," her familiar soubriquet with the press of the South and West, possesses saterina with the press of the South and west, possesses rare versatility, sings with taste and effect, and dances with the grace and dash of a finished artiste. Her introductory efforts will be in a peculiar romantic drama, termed "Satan in Paris"—one of the great Celeste's favorite and most effective plays—and the chaste farce of "The Maid with the Milking Pail."

POTOMAC WATER.—At the last session of Congress an act was passed giving the Commissioner of Public Buildings and Grounds the entire control of all streets and avenues which were improved, in whole or in part, by the general government. This, of course, leaves the pavements in charge of the mayor. Within the last few days that officer has been applied to by several citizens for permission to take up the pavements so that they can lay pipes to bring the water to their residences. In every lay pipes to bring the water to their residences. In every instance these applications have been refused on the ground that there is lack of authority, inasmuch as there has been no express legislation on the part of Congress, and the rights of the city have not been clearly defined. Such permission, in our opinion, could only be regarded as great discourtesy, and, looking at the question in another light, if this work should be commenced now, would not the introduction of the water itself be greatly retarded? In view of the great interests at stake, we are glad to learn that positive orders have been issued to the police to require, in every instance where the pavements are being taken up, an exhibition of the authority upon which the work is done, and we feel confident that these orders will be strictly enforced. At the recent municipal election, when the question was fairly presented to our efficient as to whether or not they would take the percentary measures to comp the brasplainly manifest in the smallness of the vote which was polled. The change that has taken piace in their feel aga since then is highly 5 affects and we voltage the pre-diction that when the question is again submitted to them for their action, we will have an expression of opinion that cannot be mistaken.

RAILROAD IRON.-The Alexandria Gazette mentions the arrival at that port, via the canal, of about six humdred tons of iron rail, from the Mount Savage Iron Works, near Cumberland, Maryland, for the Orange and Alexandria railroad. We are highly gratified (says the Gazette) that our railroad companies are beginning to look to the furnaces of our own, instead of those of foreign countries, for their supply of rails. The fact that railroad iron manufactured in our own country has a toughness and durability not found in the imported article, should commend it everywhere to railroad compa nies. The cheapness of the imported article has doubt-less operated to induce its purchase from abroad, but whether to the advantage of the purchasers may well be questioned. We trust that the time is near at hand when all the manufacturing and industrial interests of our country will receive that aid from the general govnment of which they are in such need, eign manufacturers. Let this aid be granted, and the some demand will be supplied from our own labor at such prices-all things considered-as the consumer can
